Large Number of Bills Passed
Over Veto of Governor

M'GREGOR IS AFTER FOSS' JOB

Thinks He Is Qualified to Fill Gubernatorial Chair—Differences of Opinion Regarding Pensions For Widows—J. W. W. Activities Led to Law Against Misuse of Old Glory

As the legislative session wears on it is clear that the governor and the members of the legislature are going to pull together no better this year than they have in previous years. It is true that the governor and the Democratic leaders have had no serious break, but they don't like him and they are always found in secret encouragement of the opposition to the governor's views.

The number of bills that are passed over the vetoes of the governor are really surprising. It is the exception rather than the rule that a veto of the governor is sustained. It is remembered that only a few years ago the passage of a bill over the veto of a governor was regarded as so remarkable a thing that for a year or two it used to be a corridor gossip. But the corridor gossip of today would have made scare headlines in those days.

The governor does not talk with many members of the legislature.

Public Service Bill

Where opposition has not been manifested against the new public service commission bill there is an apathy that does not argue well for its enactment. The worst blow that the bill got came in the form of a rumor that the governor wished the bill to come to him so that he might veto it and secure the credit of having vetoed a measure that was not comprehensive enough to meet his views.

There is no doubt that the solid backing that was planned for the bill by way of Republican conferences has failed. The Republicans did not unite well upon the measure.

Mr. McGregor's Ambition

Councillor Alexander McGregor will within a few weeks modestly admit that he is probably the best fitted man to become governor of the state of any that the Republicans can find. In short, Mr. McGregor, who has sacrificed himself for two years as a councillor, is willing to make further sacrifices. He has improved wonderfully as a speaker, but he is pretty bold as yet. He is the best advertised man at the state house. He is a good politician, and yet thinks people think he isn't. The other day he told Governor Foss that he was confident that he could defeat him for governor. Mr. Foss likes Mr. McGregor very much. "Well, Aleck, old boy, let's try it," said he.

The Pension For Dependents

The difference in the point of view between the majority and the minority report upon the subject of providing for the relief by public authority of widowed mothers with children is strikingly shown by the statements of Chairman Robert F. Foerster of the commission and Commissioner David F. Tilley. Says Mr. Foerster: "Because of the many different circumstances of widows' families the considerable period of time for which aid should be planned, and the difficulty of applying an adequate standard of subsidy, I believe that all applications for subsidy should be judged by a single body of persons with expert assistants."

Says Mr. Tilley: "We need no legislation entailing increased expense to the commonwealth, but a liberal interpretation of our existing statutes and a realization on the part of our different communities that those who are elected or appointed to serve them as overseers of the poor are not selected because of their ability to keep the tax rate down, but because of their ability to do what is best for those who, through no fault of their own, have become dependent upon public charity."

The embarrassment of framing a law is apparent when the framer tries to extract the truth from both these statements and apply it scientifically.

American Flag Protection

The passing of a law against the misuse of the American flag is the direct result of the activities of the I. W. W. Everywhere in the legislature there is evidence of impatience against acts of violence and acts which betray an utter lack of patriotism and reverence for American traditions. The effect of this public opinion has been to keep the hands of the legislature away from the trouble now going on in Milford and Hopedale, when a couple of years ago the legislature would have rushed in with boatloads.

When the Lawrence trouble broke out a year ago last winter there was a marvelous eagerness to appoint committees and investigate and send for books and papers and do all kinds of drastic things. Now, however, the Draper strike has, up to the time of the introduction of the Morrill order for a committee, been left entirely with the constituted authorities. And nothing drastic will be done under the Morrill order. Morrill, by the way, is the Socialist member of the legislature, and he is not so sure that the I. W. W. is right.

Delinquent Children

Added leniency in the handling of the cases of delinquent children is given in chapter 475 of the acts of this year, which provides for indefinite continuances. Justices with jurisdiction over children's cases are already in the habit of continuing and showing all possible leniency. But the law is in line with the theory that in times past there has been too much harshness and too great a lack of sympathy in dealing with children. Not to give the notorious Kid Carter more sympathy than he should have, one wonders how much truth there is in the remark of a self-confessed murderer that he might have started better if he hadn't been abused by the police when he did wrong as a boy.

School Colleges

Under resolve 26 the state board of education is to make a report to the legislature upon the advisability of opening the schools to the giving of collegiate courses. The idea is not exactly a new one in Massachusetts. Mayor Fitzgerald, who combines the qualifications of an educator with other well known qualifications for nearly everything else, proposed it to the legislature two or three years ago.

Chairman Frederick P. Fish of the board is a deliberate progressive and is not likely to lend his name to any radical suggestions along this line, and his influence in the matter is sure to be paramount in the board. If there is a report favoring such a collegiate course it may be expected to be extremely limited at the outset.

Carelessness

It is always a surprise as one looks over the legislature every year to find the large number of petitions asking that the acts of certain justices of the peace be confirmed. In some cases a man who has reached the expiration of his term as justice proceeds to act for many years thereafter, and then suddenly discovers that he is not qualified. Meanwhile he has taken hundreds of acknowledgements and has summoned witnesses. The legislature never fails to confirm these acts and make them good. But the consequences of such carelessness might be serious. Indeed, there is a law providing a severe penalty for him who acts as a justice or notary without being appointed as one. Some time ago a prominent member of the Boston finance commission presented a petition to have his acts confirmed.

Reclamation

The reclamation bill, which is warmly favored by Governor Foss, seems likely to become a law. The theory of the measure is that wet lands shall be reclaimed by prison labor and then sold at cost to those who wish to establish small farms. The bill utilizes the labor of the penitentiary without subjecting the artisan to unfair competition, it develops new agricultural land and provides new homes. In theory, therefore, the bill seems like an admirable measure.

The prison labor problem is a serious one in Massachusetts because of the laws which forbid a convict to work more than a stated number of hours each day, and then upon non-competitive things, such as supplies for state institutions.

Under the reclamation bill the county commissioners are given the right to acquire the land. They then make arrangements for the convict work.

Gifford Pinchot recently referred to the Massachusetts bill as one of the best measures in the state legislature.

Women Get One Bill

Woman suffrage is dead for another year, but the women have at any rate got through their resolve to provide that women may act as justices of the peace and notaries public. The resolve has now gone through two legislatures and will be submitted to the people in the fall. It will, of course, be ratified by a large vote and will be referred to as one of the victories which the women have secured.

Next year the women will go before both parties and demand a suffrage plank. They will then go to the legislature and put up a battle for the enactment of the amendment which strikes the word "male" out of the constitution.

The women acted with great wisdom in refusing to accept the Drury bill, which merely put the question on the ballot. They knew the time was not ripe for a vote on the question and fought for the ratification of two legislatures.

Row Over Drug Bill

There are signs at the state house that physicians are not particularly fond of this new bill from the committee on public health which provides that every time a doctor prescribes a drug he must keep a record of the name of the patient, just as the druggist does who sells liquor or poisons.

The bill came to the legislature with a unanimous committee report behind it. It contains, however, the implication that the use of opium and cocaine is being encouraged by registered physicians who carelessly or otherwise give it to patients.

"I will venture to say that the Massachusetts physician is one of the most careful men in the world," said one practitioner who was discussing the bill.

"The bill makes no distinction between the man who buys a dangerous drug and the man who goes to his physician for it, and the bill is therefore very unfair."

KING NICHOLAS TAKES SCUTARI

Fortress Falls at Last Into Hands of Montenegrins

THOUSANDS SLAIN IN ASSAULT

Little Kingdom Carried on Siege For Weeks In Defiance of Powers, Which Are Now Confronted by New Crisis—Growing Tension Between Greece and Bulgaria

London, April 24.—Scutari, the Gibraltar of Turkey in Europe, and the last stronghold of the Moslems in the lands which they tortured for 500 years, has fallen into the hands of Montenegrins, the puny kingdom which fired the first shot in the Balkan war and perhaps, also, the last.

Scutari was taken after a long siege culminating in two days of the most desperate fighting of modern times. The surrender of Essad Pasha, Turkish commandant, was announced after two hours of fighting with bayonets, during which both Montenegrins and Turks lost heavily. Approximately 3000 Montenegrins fell in the last assault on Scutari and 5000 Turks were killed. The victors took 20,000 prisoners.

Shortly after the formal surrender of Essad Pasha, King Nicholas of Montenegro triumphantly rode into the fallen city, emulating Czar Ferdinand at Adrianople and the late King George of Greece at Salonica, achieving his cherished ambition.

With this fortress in the possession of King Nicholas, the powers are confronted by a new crisis. Montenegro has steadfastly refused to be coerced by the concert of Europe. She carried on the siege for weeks after Europe ordered her to stop and now, with the city in her hands, it will be very difficult to dislodge her without actual bloodshed.

The spectacle of the combined military energy of Europe taking from this little nation by force what she has won by the most tremendous sacrifices of life and treasure would not elevate the powers in the eyes of the world. No valid reason for such action has yet been put forth. The creation of an autonomous Albania everyone knows to be a farce—a surrender to the triple alliance, which is backing Austria's effort to keep Serbia bottled up.

Only a few days ago an ultimatum was sent to King Nicholas of Montenegro by the commander of the blockading fleet of the powers, informing him that landing parties would be sent ashore on Montenegrin territory unless the wishes of the powers were carried out. In the meantime the Montenegrin army was continuing its operations with the greatest energy.

The long defense of the stronghold under Essad Pasha was made by an army estimated at about 10,000 men, who also had to guard the outlying stronghold of Tarakos and other connecting works surrounding the city. This they did so well that the Montenegrins, even when they were aided by the Servians, could not make any impression until a few weeks ago, when the Servians brought up a large number of heavy siege guns which soon reduced the fire of the Turkish artillery.

Most of the civilian population remained in the city throughout the siege. The population is understood to comprise about 27,000 Mohammedans and 8000 Christians of various sects.

It was said at various times that the people of Scutari as well as the garrison were in a condition of semi-starvation, but it appears that there were considerable quantities of maize and other stores within the city and that the people suffered most from lack of vegetables.

Another disturbing feature in the Balkan situation is the growing tension between Greece and Bulgaria over the possession of Salonica. If Serbia sides with Greece it is doubtful if Bulgaria could fight her way to the city.

Greek and Servian armies are of different calibre than those of Turkey. But it does not seem possible that Bulgaria would precipitate such a war. She must soon get her sons back to the grain fields or go hungry. It is more true of her than in the cases of Greece and Serbia, although both the latter have had fighting enough.

Senator Crane Still Needed

Almost the entire western Massachusetts turned out on Saturday last to give welcome to the State's most distinguished private citizen as he returned from public service to private interests. Those who could not attend in person had an unconscious linking with the festivities attending the reception accorded by the citizens of Pittsfield and Dalton to Winthrop Murray Crane. The details of the affair have already been set forth very widely in the daily press, and in many sections, editorial comment has been made highly complimentary to the distinguished son of Massachusetts, who as Lieutenant-Governor, Governor, and United States Senator has impressed himself upon the political life of the nation so effectively for the past twenty years.

Why has it been necessary for Senator Crane to retire to private life to get this endorsement so widespread, marking the esteem in which he is held and the honor felt for him by the people of Massachusetts? It is not surprising that twenty years of activity such as he has had should lead him to want to retire, but why is it that this widespread approval of him as a man and a statesman could not have been manifest at a time when its effect might have been sufficient to keep him in the public life of the nation? At no time in the history of the country has such advice as he is able to give, such judgment as he has moulded into his life by the ripe experience he has had, such leadership as he has shown, such courageous action as he has influenced his every political act, been needed more than it is at the present moment.

He didn't resign with any thought of being urged to continue. There has never been a suggestion that his declination to continue in public life had a string attached to it. It was like the man, open and clear cut, said in a few words, but words that were known by those who know him, to carry their full meaning. But the State of Massachusetts didn't do its full duty to itself or the nation when it failed to rise to the occasion and speak in no uncertain language, a desire that Senator Crane should succeed himself in such an emergency as the present. And when he is taken from the public life of the nation, it is high time that some of the lessons of the manner in which he has been removed from political activity were impressed upon the people.

There hasn't been much else during the past ten years of his career, than slander and abuse, misrepresentation and malignant association with every man in public life, and Senator Crane with all of his high standing and all of his high character always so fully recognized in him, has not been free from this campaign of malicious representation. The fakirs and reformers had marked him for slander, as they have every other successful man, and when the term of his service had closed, the most natural thing in the world was for him to give the other fellow a chance in the troublous sea of political life.

It used to be pretty generally understood that the full appreciation of men's good qualities were not felt by the community in which they lived until after they had died. So busy are people today and so quickly are things forgotten, it would seem as if this time has been changed in connection with the active busy man to that period in which he voluntarily or by force is sent from public to private life. It is no wonder that the average voter who has been misled by the political fakir, wonders if after all he hasn't been a little severe, and if the new order of things which he has helped to create is really much better than the old order of things under which he and his associates and the nation at large grew strong and prosperous.

Senator Crane is deserving of all the good things that have been said about him in connection with his home-coming, and in appreciation of the big place he has held in the public life of the nation. He is abundantly deserving of the opportunity now afforded to him for more leisure for the pleasures that come from quiet home life, and that come particularly to the man who is fortunate enough to live in the beautiful Berkshire Hills, but we very much doubt if his friends and supporters will be satisfied to allow him the leisure which he has abundantly earned, and the freedom which he has a right to claim from political activity. The state and the nation still need his counsel, his good sense, his broad view, his wise judgment. The Republican party here in Massachusetts stands today in a precarious position with relation to the rank and file of the voters. It is not at all likely that Senator Crane can be induced to do the active work of reorganizing the Republican party in Massachusetts, but it will be a sorry day for the party if it is not possible for it to still secure his advice and support which it never needed more than it does at the present time.

"He Works for —"

An intelligent man in Andover within the past two weeks, and unfortunately a man who is a type of many others, was asked for his opinion about a certain gentleman who was considering running for public office. The estimate of the man in making his reply was as follows: "He works for So and So (naming one of the large corporations of the country) and I wouldn't support any man who is under that influence." Pressed further in this connection it was acknowledged by the objector that the man in question was splendidly equipped for the office under discussion, that he had qualities of leadership which would make him of great value to the town if it could secure him in its public life, that in every respect, by his love of Andover, and knowledge of Andover, he deserved a practically unanimous support on the part of the voters of the town, but the unpardonable sin which he had committed was that he had sold his services in the open market of business to a great big business which required the best possible service it could get, and recognized that service by employing this particular individual.

The man is not a candidate for public office in Andover. The man who insisted that he would not support him is today talking loudly about the "plain people," and the crime which is represented in every sort of "success," and undoubtedly will be heard on the corners for many years to come, abusing wealth, abusing property, and abusing industry; unless perchance that position shall come which some people believe will come because of the tariff reduction, and he then may be found laddling soup furnished by the bounty of the men whose business has been practically ruined by such agitation against success and prosperity as that which he had been indulging in.

Unfortunately this man is a sample of many men who have failed to learn what a close relationship there is between the man who toils with his hands and the man who toils with his head, between the capital of money and the capital of labor, between the office end and the operating end of the great business enterprises.

Nobody wants to see such depression come as that which seems inevitable in connection with some of the great industries of New England. Nobody wants to see the great businesses in which thousands of investors have placed their money, and by which many more thousands of people are employed, stand idle and fail to give the living to their many dependents who have been employed in New England for many years past, but one cannot help feeling that if such idleness, with all the attendant suffering which would follow, is necessary for a proper teaching of the lessons of the true relationship between the classes, it might not be an unmixed evil to have the disaster come.

It is a wicked attitude which the agitator, nearly always the cheap agitator, brings to bear upon the problems of voting and the problems of choosing officials, when he always rests his argument upon the relation that this or that candidate may have toward this or that successful business. We never used to have this idea at all prevalent in the political or business life of Andover. We may well rejoice that it isn't the dominant factor at the present moment, but it is much more general than the loyal citizen, who thinks only of public service in its best sense, could wish it were even in this particular community.

Editorial Cinders

The announcement of the prize award to the Lowell Textile School brings a deal of satisfaction to Andover, for the special prize for chemistry awarded to the evening school pupil who shows the greatest proficiency in that branch has been given to John Nicoll, an Abbott Village boy, who works all day in the Smith & Dove mills, and who has been spending his evenings for a number of years at the Lowell Textile School. This is a mighty good tribute, not only to the industry and effort put forth by young Nicoll himself, but to the good work which the school can do in training boys on part-time study and part-time work plan. We shall hear more of young Nicoll, and a great deal of the credit for his promised success will be due to the excellent training of the Lowell Textile School.

If there is anything more amusing in the week's history than the character of the speech delivered by Hon. Augustus Peabody Gardner at the opening of the tariff debate at Washington, it escaped our notice. For Mr. Gardner to talk about "machines" and how they are responsible for the destruction of the Republican party, is a sight for the gods, when one thinks of the character of the management which Gardner and his satellites have given to the Republican politics of Massachusetts for the last ten or fifteen years. If the Republicans in Congress have no better spokesman than the Congressman from Massachusetts to set forth the great principles upon which the party has stood and should continue to stand in the fight for its rehabilitation, then the party is in a sadder way than some of us had believed it to be.

THE MASONS' LADIES NIGHT

Entertainment and Dance Enjoyed by St. Matthews Lodge Members and Guests

Monday evening of this week was observed as ladies' night by St. Matthews lodge, A. F. and A. M., and in honor of the occasion, the large room was completely filled with the members and their wives and friends, who gathered to join in the evening's pleasure and entertainment. Not only were many Andover people present, but there were also numerous guests from Lawrence and other nearby towns.

The entertainment, which was the first feature of the evening, was furnished by the Weber quartet of Boston, assisted by Mrs. Grace Sanborn Cole, reader, and that was sufficient guaranty of the worth of the concert. The Webers are renowned as a quartet; they are entertainers as well as singers, and they had their audience with them in a very few moments, keeping them well entertained for an hour and a half. The numbers that they rendered surely pleased the audience, judging from the reception and the encores given. Those present heard the finest of ensemble singing, and at the same time enjoyed a hearty laugh, the joyous spirit of the Webers, especially Mr. Woods, the baritone, being contagious.

Their first selection, "On the Sea," by Dudley Buck, was full of life and was perhaps the heaviest number on the program, but the Webers are masters with music of that nature and their fine work earned them an encore, Eugene Field's "The Little Red Drum," which was given in an inimitable manner. "Waterlilies," by Linders, was equally well sung, and the quartet responded with "Under the Southern Moonlight." Mrs. Cozy's "Boarding-house" where all nationalities suffered and were "nourished" eating "pies and things," brought down the house, and they were twice encored. It was in the second encore that they fairly convulsed the audience with "Kate," an Irish ditty, bass solo, with bagpipe accompaniments. Their final selection, "Lullaby," was splendidly rendered, and the insistence of the audience brought them back again to sing one of the finest of all the numbers, "Oft in the Silly Night."

Besides the quartet selections, Mr. Prescott, first tenor, and Mr. Davidson, bass, each rendered solos. The former sang, "Adieu, Marie," and the latter, "Slumber Song." Mr. Davidson, whose bass voice of great compass is finely adapted as a foundation for the quartet, rendered the rollicking sea song, "Three for Jack," in a most pleasing manner and also sang "Roll On," as an encore. Both songs displayed to the full his wonderful voice. Mr. Cole accompanied both singers on the piano.

Not the least enjoyable numbers, by any means, were the readings by Mrs. Grace Sanborn Cole, whose distinct enunciation and pleasing manner gained for her a hearty reception. Her selections were all good, but perhaps the most realistic, and unfortunately in too many cases true, was the monologue, "Her First Housekeeping." Mrs. Cole's offerings were generously and deservedly encored.

The concert was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, and at its close light refreshments were served, after which the guests adjourned to A. O. U. W. hall where dancing was enjoyed. Music was furnished by the Adelphi orchestra, and an order of ten dances was carried out.

Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. R. Holmes, Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm B. McTernan, Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Leon O. Dunklee, Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Austin F. Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Christie, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Russell, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. "The Man on the Box"

The next play of the Barnstormers will be presented on Tuesday evening, May 6, and the members of the cast are busily rehearsing in preparation for the event. The play which has been chosen for the third and last presentation of the year, is "The Man on the Box" from the book of the same name by Harold McGrath.

An amusing comedy in three acts, the scene of the story is laid in Washington, and concerns the escapade with its ensuing complications of a young lieutenant, Robert Worburton by name. While endeavoring to play a prank on his sister Nancy, he succeeds in landing in jail charged with disorderly conduct and the abduction of Miss Betty Annesley, a friend of Nancy's with whom he is in love although he has not met her. His hearing before Magistrate Watts, where he appears as a groom, the payment of his fine by Miss Annesley, and her determination to find out his identity and get even with him all combine to make an intensely interesting and amusing story. Another element in the situation is the intrigue between Col. Annesley, Betty's father, and Count Karloff, a Russian diplomat, concerning a plan of the fortifications of Fortress Monroe. Worburton's final discarding of his disguise and the surrender of Betty bring the play to a happy conclusion.

The lines of the comedy abound with fun and wit, and there is opportunity for many a hearty laugh over the various situations which develop. The parts have been excellently cast and the presentation promises to be very successful.

Tickets for the play can be secured by members of the association on or after Tuesday, April 29. The distribution of the tickets will begin at eight o'clock. Each membership receipt entitles the holder to two tickets and not more than three receipts can be presented by or six tickets given to any one person.

W. R. C. Anniversary

BENEFIT BAKERY SALE

$350 Cleared for Lawrence Hospital at November Clubhouse Sale on Friday

The Bakery Sale held at the November clubhouse last Friday afternoon for the benefit of the Lawrence General Hospital proved to be a very gratifying success, gratifying alike to the ladies who had planned the affair and had the arrangements in charge, and to the large number of persons who attended and patronized the sale and who realized that the entire town, as it were, had joined hands in making the afternoon the success it was. The response to the request made for contributions was so generous that no expenditures in this particular were necessary, and all sums taken in represented a net gain. The total amount cleared from the sale was $350.

A large variety of articles were on sale at the various tables, including candy, ice cream, tea, poultry, fruit, preserves, cake, flowers, etc. Serviceable baskets for the marketing could also be purchased for a moderate sum, and these proved to be of great assistance to the buyers.

The sale was arranged under the general guidance of the Andover directors who have charge of the work of securing additional funds for the hospital. The committee consists of Mrs. M. W. Stackpole, chairman; Mrs. W. D. Currier, Mrs. Philip Ripley and Mrs. A. P. Thompson, and as much time and effort had been expended by them to ensure the success of the sale, the outcome was highly satisfactory to all concerned.

The ladies who assisted, and were in charge of the tables, were as follows:

Flower table—Mrs. Keep, Mrs. Poynter.
Candy table—Mrs. Homer, Mrs. Leonard.

Ice cream—Mrs. Feeney, Mrs. Cannon, Mrs. Lindsay.

Wedding

SCHAEFFER—ROGERS

With the bridal party standing amidst a profusion of flowers and palms, and in the presence of about forty relatives and intimate friends, Miss Margaret Marion Rogers became, on Saturday afternoon, the bride of Charles Ellsworth Schaeffer of Waterbury, Conn. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barnett Rogers, at 3 Maple avenue, and the house was very attractively decorated for the occasion with flowers and greenery.

As the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss Helen Brown, the party entered the living-room and took their places. The bride made a charming figure in a gown of white crepe de chine trimmed with shadow lace, and carrying a handsome bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Anna M. Holt of Chestnut street, who wore pale blue chiffon and carried sweet peas. The best man was Walter E. Munson of Waterbury, Conn. The service was performed by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow of the South church, the Episcopal service being used, and the bride was given away by her father.

A brief reception followed the ceremony, the young couple, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, and Miss Mabel Schaeffer, sister of the groom, receiving the congratulations of their friends. Luncheon was also served by Caterer Rhodes. The newly-married pair were also the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts, including among other things a handsome mirror from the members of the T. W. T. club and a water-color sketch from the choir of the South church.

About six o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer departed for Boston by automobile, amid a shower of rice, confetti, and numerous other forms of congratulation. After a short wedding trip they will be at home at 329 Willow street, Waterbury, Conn.

BROWN—BARTON

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Barton of Wolcott avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Ella Rhodes, to Austin J. Brown of Adams, N. Y. The ceremony took place on Saturday, April 19, at New London, Conn. Mrs. Brown is a graduate of the Pynchard School and has many friends in Andover who are extending congratulations.

November Club Luncheon

The November club held its annual luncheon at the clubhouse last Monday afternoon at one o'clock. A large number of the members were in attendance, and the occasion was a very pleasant one. The guests were seated at small round tables tastefully decorated with flowers, having found their places by means of an ingenious place-card arrangement.

Following the luncheon a delightful musical was enjoyed, the program consisting of violin selections by Mrs. Joseph N. Ashton, solos by Miss Mabel Carter, and trios by Mrs. Frederic G. Moore, Mrs. William T. Jackson, and Mrs. C. W. Scott. Miss Ellen C. Snow played the accompaniments.

CHARLOTTE BUSFIELD

Charlotte Busfield died early last Sunday morning at the Lawrence General Hospital after an illness of but a week's duration. She was taken ill on the Sunday previous to her death and, on the following Wednesday, at the solicitation of her friends, she decided to go to the hospital. Her condition quickly became serious and a heart complication developed which was the immediate cause of death.

Miss Busfield was born in Andover on May 22, 1854, and lived in this town all her life. For the past thirty years she was employed by the Tye Rubber Co.

A brave-hearted, friendly, loyal, capable woman was Charlotte Busfield. Her pathway through this life was not as pleasant as is the lot of most people, but she went her way patiently and faithfully. From early youth she toiled, and for many years she was the support and care-taker of an invalid mother. Her nearest relatives in this town were her cousins, Mrs. Joseph A. Smart and Mrs. William H. Higgins.

Funeral services were held last Tuesday at Christ church, Rev. Frederic Palmer officiating, and the committal was in Christ Church cemetery. The bearers were Dr. Albert E. Hulme, Andrew McTernan, Wm. McTernan, and James Gillespie.

B. ELIZABETH PEMBERTON

Mrs. B. Elizabeth (Kenney) Pemberton, wife of Roland G. Pemberton, for many years a resident of this town, died at the Cottage Hospital in Lawrence on Wednesday morning, April 23. She had been in poor health for several years, and early in February, becoming seriously ill, was taken to the hospital, where she had since remained.

Mrs. Pemberton was born in Roxbury sixty-six years ago. She came to Ballardvale when a young girl and from that time practically her whole life was spent there and in Andover.

Twenty-four years ago she was married to Roland G. Pemberton of this town, who survives her. A quiet, unostentatious woman, she was known to but few, but among them she numbered warm, true friends. She was a member of Shaw-sheen lodge, D. of H.

The funeral took place this morning at nine o'clock at St. Augustine's church and burial was in St. Augustine's cemetery.

ROBERT CAPE LOUDON

Robert Cape Loudon, son of Daniel D. and the late Mary Loudon, passed away last Friday afternoon, April 18, at the family home, 222 No. Main street. He was aged six years and 28 days.

The child had been ill but a short time with a severe attack of bronchial pneumonia, and his death came as a severe blow to his father and friends of the family. His mother died but a short time ago.

The funeral service took place on Sunday afternoon at the late home. Many floral tributes surrounded the little casket, and there was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. F. A. Wilson conducted the service, and the juvenile choir of the Free church sang two selections. Burial was in Spring Grove cemetery.

ANNIE WARD

Miss Annie Ward, a resident of this town, passed away on Tuesday, April 22, at the home of Thomas Tammany, on Stevens street. The deceased was 52 years of age, and death was due to heart disease.

The funeral took place on Thursday morning at St. Augustine's church and burial was in St. Augustine's cemetery.

In Lawrence, Wednesday, April 23, aged 66 years, Mrs. Roland G. Pemberton.

Death of Edward F. Abbott

Edward F. Abbott, for over sixty years a resident of this town, a prominent member of the West church, and an officer and valued worker in the Andover Grange, passed away early this morning at his home in West Andover, after an illness of about two months' duration. While seriously ill, his family and friends did not despair of his recovery until within the past few days, when his strength failed rapidly.

Mr. Abbott was born in this town sixty-one years ago next July and had always lived here. He is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Arthur Clark of New Hampshire, Marion and Ruth of Andover; and two sons, Gayton of Somerville and Harold of this town. There are also three grandchildren who survive.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the West church, Rev. Dean A. Walker officiating. Burial will be in the West Parish cemetery.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Should Women Vote?

Lately I have been asked by some lady friends why I had not said anything about the suffragettes' rows they are having in England.

I at once answer the question and say, yes, all sensible women should be allowed to vote. Why not? At the same time, every one of these women, who are simply lunatics and disturbers of the peace should never be allowed to vote. In some civilized countries no person is permitted to vote if he has "raised Cain" generally, been put in prison or convicted of a criminal offense. The kind of rowdism and offenses against persons and property which have been in vogue by what are styled educated women shows that their education has been one-sided and utterly without common sense.

The want of tact is a great want either in business or politics. We can see this in our politics in the State of Massachusetts. The Progressive party just gave the Democrats the election in the Thirteenth District last week. This does not say that the Roosevelt or Progressive party is wrong in what it advocates, but it gives the Democratic papers the chance to say that the Thirteenth District voted for the Underwood tariff bill. Just look at the figures and note that there were 12,991 for the Democratic candidate; then if we add the 8843 votes for Cutting and the 5673 that went to White, we find that 14,516 votes were for high protective duties, as with all their much-vaunted cry of progress the Roosevelt party is as far from wishing an honest deal as to tariff as is the standpat party, and this Thirteenth District election was fought chiefly on the tariff. I only put in this digression about what we did here to show that want of tact is not confined to the suffragettes in England. They can't or don't want to see that the present Asquith government has the Tories to fight for every inch of ground they gain and the Home Rule bill, the Welch Church bill and the Plural Voting bill would all be seriously endangered if it added a Woman's Suffrage bill to its program just now.

Every window these mad women break, every house they burn just puts back their cause, and if the Tories were in power there would be no humbug about the eating or not eating of these imprisoned law-breakers because they happened to be "ladies." If they went on a hunger strike they could just do so!

The roughest handling these furious suffragettes have had has been from their own sex. Last week the police had to save them from being torn to pieces by their anti-suffrage sisters who were handling them without gloves.

In some countries women are supposed to be an inferior kind of animal, but in all civilized countries during the last fifty years, women have come to be thought of as equal to men and I do not see why a sane woman should not be allowed to vote. The ambition to vote shows that there are really some women who have more in them than the newest shape of corsets.

I spoke about tact, which puts me in mind of the provost of Forfar seventy years ago. The thing they call the people's charter was in a sense just like this women's suffrage business in England. The Chartists, as they were called, wanted changes in British law. They were supposed to be seven things urgently requiring to be changed. I do not recollect all the seven points of the charter, but since that time some of the things that these supposedly mad Chartists advocated have become law—no property qualifications for members, equal electoral districts, shorter hours for women and children in factories, reform of the House of Lords. Well, the Chartists in the manufacturing town of Dundee got tired of being called dangerous lunatics, anarchists, socialists, etc., by the Tory party and also by the Whig party, and made up their minds to raise a civil war, and thought that the first part of the war should be to take the then chief town of the county. About 1000 men and boys started to take Forfar, fifteen miles from Dundee. This army consisted chiefly of hacklers, weavers, shoemakers and tailors. Some of the old Waterloo soldiers carried their old guns and powder flasks. The leader had an old Spanish sword, but the rank and file had broom-handles for weapons. This army of good men and true patriots marched to Forfar to take it. The provost of Forfar prepared to meet this motley army by ordering every bakery in town to bake beefsteak pies with a half-pound of steak in each pie and plenty of suet, onions, pepper and salt. He also ordered ten barrels of beer to be sent to Forfar green (playstead as we call it); so this tactful man was prepared to meet this Chartist army and put on his cocked hat, red coat and gold chain and went out to meet the invaders. He asked the leader what they wanted, and was told that they had come to take Forfar. The provost said that he would surrender at once as he had no arms to fight them, but as they had had a long march they would be hungry and tired and he advised them to go to the green and rest and that he had prepared a lunch for them. After resting and enjoying their beefsteak pies, and especially the unlimited quantity of beer, this pawky provost said that seeing they had taken Forfar the best thing that they could do was to go back to Dundee and tell their friends there that they had taken Forfar. This advice they followed and got back to Dundee footsore and tired, and said that the provost surrendered Forfar to them. So that finished the Chartist civil war in Scotland.

But like all "sound" clergymen I must refer to my text in closing. "Should women vote?" An old Scottish song has a verse which answers the question:

"Nocht's to be had at woman's hand
Unless ye gie them a' the gree"
Sae I leave aff where I began
And tak' my auld cloak about me."

*All their own way.
I cannot close without quoting the Scotch poet's ideas about woman-kind—

"Auld Nature swears the lovely dears
Her noblest work she classes O'
Her 'prentice han' she tried on man
An' then she made the lasses O'."

The High Cost of Spectacular Agitation

A reduction of the New Haven's dividend from eight to six per cent would be of more than passing moment to many who perhaps may be inclined to take lightly the continued agitation of professional agitators. It would mean a loss for the stockholders of the New Haven amounting in the aggregate to $3,137,530.

Were this loss to be widely distributed over the country it is not likely that it would be felt appreciably by others than the actual holders of the stock. But, unlike the case of some other roads of equal importance, the stock of the New Haven is held within rather narrow geographical limits. Ninety per cent of its stockholders live in the four states of Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, and Rhode Island. Of the total loss in income which a reduced dividend rate would mean these states would have to bear $2,823,779. Concentrated within such narrow confines such curtailment of spending money could not help but be felt by the community at large. Less money in the pocketbook means for the shop-keeper less taken into the till. Nearly three millions of dollars withheld from these states would mean a serious loss. And the holders of stock would not be the only ones who would ruefully have to figure up in dollars and cents the cost of the agitator and his effect upon railroad credit. The ledgers of the butcher and the grocer would show an account with him, too. And it would be on the wrong side.

CASTLE SQ.

"The Man From Home," with its European scenes but strongly American atmosphere, is being excellently presented at Castle Square this week. Next Monday the attraction will be "The Wife."

COLONIAL

"The Chocolate Soldier" is still being enjoyed by large audiences at the Colonial. A slight change was made in the cast on Monday evening owing to the illness of one of the principals.

PARK

It will be a pity to say farewell to "Officer 666," for the eccentric guardian of the public peace has occasioned many laughs and consequent enjoyment at the Park theatre during the past few weeks. The stay, however, is limited to the current week.

SHUBERT

Emma Trentini in "The Firefly" continues to fill the Shubert theatre, where her brilliant visit is drawing to a close. The little singer has augmented her reputation both as a singer and a dancer.

The sixth annual Patriots' Day shoot of the Lawrence Fish and Game Protective association, held on the club grounds Saturday, proved to be the biggest shoot the club has ever held, sixty-one different shooters facing the traps during the day, fifty-eight of whom shot the entire program.

Maclyn Arbuckle in Klaw & Erlanger's realistic production of Edmund Day's famous play, "The Round Up," which begins its sixth week at the Boston theatre on Monday evening, continues its unbroken succession of crowded audiences. The battle scene is worked up to a climax of great excitement, bringing tumultuous applause from the audience. In this scene twenty mounted Indians ride along a tortuous path at the edge of a precipice. The attack upon the two wanderers in the desert b this band and their routing by a detachment of U. S. Cavalry headed by "Slim" Hoover, the sheriff, played to the life by Maclyn Arbuckle, ended the scene with a whirlwind of hurrahs and cheers.

COMPROMISE AGREED TO

Government Yields in Belgian Strike For Equal Suffrage

Brussels, April 23.—Parliament voted to accept the proposal made by Premier Broqueville that a commission be appointed to examine the suffrage question and draft electoral reforms. It was a signal victory for the strikers and work will probably be resumed generally on Thursday. The strike committee will meet today.

The leaders of the Socialist trades unions and their followers have gained their first point, which was to make the government take into consideration a change in the Belgium parliamentary franchise hitherto to their disadvantage at the polls owing to its system of plural votes for the wealthier and more highly educated classes.

At the last returns 993,070 men possessed one vote, 395,866 two votes and 308,683 three votes, so that the single votes were always overwhelmed.

This is the first occasion in which a political strike has resulted in a victory for the strikers, and the whole movement has been notable for the energy and determination displayed and for the excellent control shown by the men, who have entirely refrained from violence.

INCREASED PAY GRANTED

Railroad Firemen Also Win Demand For Standardized Wages

New York, April 24.—Eastern railroad firemen are granted an increase of pay estimated at from 10 to 12 percent by the award of the Erdman act arbitration board in their case, handed down last night.

Other claims of the firemen are allowed, but the demand for two firemen on large locomotives is denied except in case of necessity.

Another request for which the firemen fought, namely, the standardization of wages based on the weight of locomotives on drivers, was granted. The firemen were also relieved of the duty of cleaning engines.

The award is considered in the nature of a compromise, as the firemen asked an increase estimated in the neighborhood of 15 percent. The total amount of wages paid the firemen, who number about 35,000, is $29,000,000, so that the increase of from 10 to 12 percent will cost the railroads from $2,900,000 to $3,480,000 annually.

POLICE HUNTING
A PAWTUCKET MAN

Sought in Connection With Murder of Mrs. Cobert

North Attleboro, Mass., April 23.—A warrant was issued last night for the arrest of Fenton Thompson of Pawtucket, sought by the police in connection with the murder by an armed burglar, Sunday, of Mrs. Eugene L. Cobert and the subsequent wounding of Miss Mary Powers and her brother.

The finding of a screwdriver, identified by employees of the New Haven road as one stolen from a tool box on the night of the break at the High street station in Attleboro, in the yard at the rear of the Powers home, and the claim made by two alleged companions of Thompson that it was used by him the night they broke into the station, gave the clue upon which the police are acting.

M. I. T. WILL GET $750,000

Motion For New Trial to Set Aside
Pratt Will Be Denied

Boston, April 22.—Judge de Courcy of the supreme court denied the motion for a new trial in the Charles H. Pratt will contest, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will receive the $750,000 to found the Pratt school of naval architecture and marine engineering, as provided for in the will.

Pratt directed that his property should be held by trustees until it amounted to $750,000 and then devised to the institute to found the school. Ten first cousins contested the will and claimed, aside from alleged improper execution, that the testator was of unsound mind at the time he signed his last testament. The fund now has accumulated to nearly the full amount.

Abbot Academy Notes

A sympathetic and appreciative audience listened last Tuesday evening to a most interesting lecture by Miss Morse on "Ancient Castles of Wales," and looked with delight at the beautiful photographs with which her talk was illustrated. Miss Morse is a remarkably pleasant speaker and knew well how to make the history, romance, and customs of the Welsh people living to us, whether she was telling of the valorous deeds of Owen Glendower or of the untiring courtesy of the warden of Harlech Castle. She limited her talk mainly to seven castles of North Wales built in the 13th century by Edward I.—Conway, Beaumaris, Carnarvon and Harlech, and three less well-known ones that are now but ivy-covered ruins. The photographs, which were not only of these castles, but of one or two lovely houses and doorways, were of wonderful beauty and had a romantic charm which is hard to describe. They were taken by Miss Morse herself during a summer spent in North Wales, and every one of her hearers felt as if they had gone with her upon that delightful journey.

Mr. Alfred Noyes, who has already been enthusiastically received in Andover, will read from his poems in Davis Hall tomorrow afternoon at a quarter before three. The admission fee for all except members of the school is 50 cents.

Another lecture of great interest is to be given next week. Professor George E. Woodberry of Beverly, until recently head of the department of English Literature at Columbia University, will lecture on "The Way of a Student with Books," on Tuesday afternoon at a quarter before four, in Davis Hall. Mr. Woodberry is an eminent critic and poet. The best-known of his larger works is the beautifully written biography of Hawthorne.

Choral Service Repeated

The choral service by the chorus of fifty voices from the Baptist, Free, and South churches was repeated on Sunday evening at the Free church before another large congregation. The program was identical with that of the week before, with the exception that Dr. Palmer offered prayer in place of Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, who was not present.

In practically all of the features of the service there was the same degree of excellence which prevailed last week. Despite the fact that several soprano voices were lacking, which brought into still more prominence the strong alto section, the chorus work remained about the same, the general effect differing but little from that of the first presentation.

The work of Mr. Booth at the organ and Mrs. Angus at the piano was as fine as it could be under the circumstances, their two duets being especially well rendered.

Miss Griggs was also very enjoyable, although she was hampered somewhat by a slight cold. Her two solos were much appreciated, however, by the entire audience. The usual offering to defray expenses was made.

Held Patriotic Meeting

The Woman's Relief Corps held a very interesting and successful patriotic meeting in Abbott Village hall on Saturday evening, April 19th, at which there was a large attendance chiefly of residents of the village. The purpose of the meeting was to observe Patriots' Day, and to further still more the quiet but telling work which the members of the Corps, under the capable guidance of the Patriotic Instructor, Mrs. James Anderson, are continually carrying on to keep the spirit of patriotism and loyalty to country in the minds of the people of the community.

Saturday night's exercises were opened by an address of welcome by the president, Mrs. Charles Buchan, followed by readings by Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. E. R. Eastman, past president, Miss Ethel Eaton, and Miss Margaret May. An appropriate address was made by Rev. E. Victor Bigelow, and E. Kendall Jenkins and Commander George W. Chandler also made remarks. Musical selections were furnished on the Victrola by W. A. Allen.

Obsequies

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Harnden, who died at the family home on the corner of Park and Florence streets, on Thursday of last week, was held on Saturday afternoon, Dr. Frederic Palmer of Christ church, officiating. There were present many relatives and friends of the deceased who gathered to pay a last tribute to one who had been so dear to them all. The casket was surrounded by many beautiful flowers which testified to the esteem in which she was held by all who knew her. The bearers were the three brothers of the deceased, William, Charles and Andrew McTernan, and a nephew, Walter Brown. Burial was in the family lot in the South cemetery.

In the passing of Mrs. Harnden, the community lost a rare Christian character, a personality which was a constant joy and inspiration to kindred and friends alike. While essentially a home-loving woman, and a devoted wife and mother, her love and interest were not confined entirely to the home circle, her kindly cheer and counsel and true sympathy being always available to those outside. Ever ready to do her share and more than her share of the burden bearing of others, and ever patient and cheerful in her own times of adversity, she maintained her courage and good cheer through all the long weeks of failing health and strength to the last. And while she has passed on, her memory will ever be cherished by all who knew her.

Straw Hats.

The straw hat is a relative newcomer in the world of dress. It was not until 1784, according to Les Nouvelles, that it first appeared, and its adoption was originally exclusive to women. Men did not make use of it until the Waterloo year, and the foundation of the great Alsatian industry was only in 1854, when the first big factories were erected. Our contemporary adds that it is not generally known that many so-called "straw" hats are made entirely of wood. But they are none the less efficient as protectors against the effects of glare and sunshine.

Home Treatment.

"Here," began a woman known to the writer in the Canadian Courier—"here's an article in the evening paper on 'Women's Work For the Feeble Minded.'"

Her husband grunted, being in a reactionary mood "I'd like to know," he said, "what women have ever done for the feeble minded."

"They usually marry them, dear," replied his wife sweetly.

ARABIAN JUSTICE.

Convicting a Thief by the Ordeal of the Red-hot Knife.

The ordeal of the red-hot knife is thus described by Abdullah Mansur (G. Wyman Bury) as he saw it in "The Land of Uz." The case was one of theft from a caravan. Two young men were implicated, one a palace slave, the other a young Arab, a native of the oasis. Each accused the other, with many oaths and much mutual vilification. Finally both invoked the ordeal of the knife.

In due course a venerable Arab appeared, bringing the instrument with him. His family for generations had possessed the hereditary right to administer the ordeal. The knife seemed a very ordinary piece of hoop iron, shaped roughly into a sort of blade about eighteen inches long. The name and attributes of Allah were engraved upon it, and it was fitted with a plain wooden haft.

An attendant brought a bowl of water and a brazier of live charcoal, in which the knife was inserted. The Arab youth received the ordeal first. He repeated his assertions of innocence, and rinsing out his mouth with water, put out his tongue, which was seized at the tip by the owner of the knife. The instrument, glowing dull red, was drawn from the brazier, and with it three light blows were struck upon the victim's tongue, which was then inspected. It merely showed slight white marks where the hot iron had fallen.

The slave's turn then came, and whether he flinched at the contact of the hot iron or had failed to keep his tongue sufficiently moist I cannot say, but the heat of the blade picked off a small patch of skin and showed a bleeding surface. According to the rules of the ordeal, that proved his guilt, and he was led away to durance vile.

LUNA'S MIGHTY PEAKS.

Peculiarity of the Ring Mountains of the Moon.

The moon is really and truly a great planet of mountains, its whole visible surface being dotted with elevations of curious shapes and of extraordinary height. We say "its whole visible surface" and hasten to explain that we make this statement simply because the eye of man has never seen but one side of the surface of the moon.

What we see convinces us that the little planet is extremely mountainous, for on the "end" exposed to our view there are no fewer than 30,000 peaks, varying in height from 2,000 feet to four miles. When we consider the fact that this lunarian world is only one thirty-second part as large as the earth we can easily see why it deserves the title of the "planet of great mountains."

There is a peculiar thing about these 30,000 moon peaks. Each and every one of them has a ringlike form, the open end of the conical point being of greater or lesser diameter, according to the height of the mountain. In a low grade telescope these peaks resemble true volcanoes, but when viewed through a high grade glass it is seen that the depression in the center of the queer "ring mountain" is often so great as to be below the general level of the surrounding country.

The depth of these depressions is calculated in a curious manner, by figuring on the relative shadows they cast when the sun is shining full upon them. The diameter of these "ring mountains" varies greatly, some of the larger ones being 50, 100 or even 150 miles, while the smaller look like post holes when viewed through a good telescope.
